Leib

Samuel Leib, JD is a founding partner of Leib Knott Gaynor law firm in Milwaukee. With more than 35 years experience, he maintains a distinguished litigation practice representing clients in matters involving medical malpractice, oral surgical and dental malpractice, long-term care facilities, and related business transactions and disputes. His representation spans the entire country. Sam has also been selected to serve on numerous national medical defense litigation panels where he is frequently asked to defend complex, high risk medical specialties throughout the country. Besides medical related matters, Sam has represented federal and state governmental entities and subdivisions in matters ranging from personal injury to alleged civil rights violations. Over the course of his career, Sam has participated in over 175 jury trials in cases ranging from brain damaged babies to decubitus ulcers. Sam is one of the most highly regarded trial lawyers in Wisconsin and considered a leader by both attorneys and judges. Among other professional distinctions, Sam has been a member of the faculty at Marquette University Law School since 1998, instructing and inspiring new attorneys in the area of health care provider liability, a course of study he co-developed. Sam also lectures frequently on health care and litigation issues to lawyers, medical providers and other specialty groups.

Lorenz

Amy Lorenz MSSW, LCSW is Deputy Administrator of the Milwaukee County Behavioral Health Division Community Access to Recovery Services and is responsible for the management of the Community Mental Health and AODA Network which includes the community-based system of access and treatment for adult residents of Milwaukee County who have behavioral health needs.

Mead-Meucci

Joy Mead-Meucci, M.S., CSAC, is Senior Director of Behavioral Health Services at Aurora Medical Centers and has over 30 years' experience in the field of mental health and addiction treatment services. Experience gained through provision of clinical and social work services, program development and implementation, and leadership roles in community organizations, healthcare systems, and in private practice.

Munger

Brad Munger has seen service delivery networks in a variety of settings and from multiple perspectives, from inpatient, outpatient, to the streets. As a licensed professional counselor, he has worked in both in private and public sectors for about 30 years with a range of responsibilities from psychological evaluation to direct treatment and clinical/administrative supervision in a broad array of programs within the Wisconsin mental health system.

Currently a Program and Planning Analyst in the Division of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services within the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, he is the technical consultant and contract manager for several areas, including Crisis Intervention. In these capacities he works diligently on suicide prevention. He provides training workshops for the American Association of Suicidology and the Suicide Prevention Resource Center. Among a variety of other activities, Brad is also working as a geropsychological and crisis consultant on the current departmental initiative, Wisconsin Dementia Care System Redesign.
